Luncheon To Honor EPA Councilman Jackson

Clarence A. Jackson, Jr., member of the East Palo Alto Municipal Council and Republic Candidate for State Assembly in the newly-created 21st District will be honored by the Board of Directors of Opportunities Industrialization Center West (OICW) at a luncheon on Friday, Oct. 25th at 12:00 noon at the Rickey's Hyatt House, House, the Rose Room, in Palo Alto.

The keynote address will be delivered by Congressman Paul (Pete) N. McCloskey of Menlo Park. A special presentation will be made by Reginald R. Kearton, executive vice president of Lockheed Missiles and Space Company.

Jackson, who is chairman of the OICW Board of Directors is long time supporter and worker in OICW. His involvement dates back to the early years of the establishment of the manpower training venture on the Mid-Peninsula.

He served as interim director on loan from Lockheed, and a member of the Board of Directors, having served as chairman during the crucial years of the program modification. This honor comes to Mr. Jackson upon his retiring as board chairman.

Succeeding Jackson as OICW board chairman is the Rev. Charles Harris, associate pastor of the True Light Baptist Church of East Palo Alto and the official representative of the Peninsula Baptist Ministers Union. Rev. Harris is an employee of the Hewlett-Packard Company.

Other special guests who will be attending the luncheon include Mayor Henry Anthony of East Palo Alto, county and city government officials and representatives from Bay Area Business, industry, community organizations and churches.
