Rhodes Named To Stanford Job Post

*Reversed Post
5/29/68*

Herbert Rhodes, an employment specialist with the San Mateo County Human Resources Commission, has been named a minority employment representative in the Stanford University personnel office.

His job will be to help Stanford keep its commitment to double minority employment within a year.

Rhodes, 41, holds an associate in arts degree from San Jose City College, and has taken courses at San Jose State College and the University of Arizona. He is an OICW board member.

SPEAKER

Herbert Rhodes

1970s EPA leader
Rhodes sketched an often surprising portrait of a community that has more white families than black families, but a larger black population because of the 5.2-children-per-family ratio among the black families.
