Metropolitan Readiness Test Results
For Kindergarten June 1968

1971

The Metropolitan Readiness Test was given to 692 kindergarten children in April of this year. The tests were administered by a team of consultants working with individual kindergarten teachers in teams of two.

Six tests are included in the Metropolitan battery. They are: Word Meaning, Listening, Matching, Alphabet, Numbers, and Copying. The total scores were converted to a percentile rank. Thus the teachers have an indication of how each pupil compares in overall readiness status to a representative group of beginning first grade pupils. The total scores were also converted to a letter rating through reference to a Table in the Test Manual. This table gives letter ratings on a five-point scale, from A to E, a description of each level, and a description of the significance of the rating. (See Table)

The highest test results on an individual test were found to be the Alphabet. This was the area of concentration in the Ravenswood Kindergarten Readiness Program. There were 247 children below the 25th percentile on the total test. This is approximately one-third of the children. The number of children in each letter rating according to the school and District was as follows:

Belle Haven	2	13	60	48	12	135
