Park dedicated to fallen officer

Beth Ann Davis, mother of slain East Palo Alto police officer Joel Davis, gets a comforting hug (above) from Police Chief Wes Bowling during Saturday's dedication of the Joel M. Davis Park.

Davis died on June 21, 1988, after being shot twice while pursuing a suspect identified as Ronald Price, who is now serving a life sentence for Davis' murder.

The dedication featured an honor guard and a bagpiper from the County Sheriff's Office. The park, located off Tinsley Street in the University Square residential community, is the city's newest.
